Since 1963, Bond has entered our homes and lodged in our minds through the famous series of Bond movies shown worldwide. Recently, however, his movies have been under attack from women's rights organizations. Critics are unhappy with the way women have been portrayed in the movies: always beautiful and naïve, never smart or capable. Actresses are always given brainless roles: women left to wait

New York to attend Sarah Lawrence College, from which she graduated in 1966. For a time she lived in Jackson, Mississippi with her lawyer husband and small daughter. About Langston Hughes, American Poet, her first book for children, she says, “After my first meeting with Langston Hughes I vowed I would write a book about him for children someday. Why? Because I, at twenty-two, knew next to nothing of his work, and he didn’t scold me; he just gave me a stack of his books. And he was kind to me; I will always be grateful that in his absolute warmth and generosity he fulfilled my deepest dream (and need) of what a poet should be.

“To me he is not dead at all. Hardly a day goes by that I don’t think of him or speak of him. Once, just before he died, when he was sick with the flu, I took him a sack full of oranges. The joy I felt in giving that simple gift is undiminished by time. He said he liked oranges, too.”

46. What is the main topic of the passage?

(A) Alice Walker’s reflections on Langston Hughes
 (B) The influence of Alice Walker on the writing of Langston Hughes
 (C) Langston Hughes’ book about Alice Walker
 (D) A comparison of the childhoods of Alice Walker and Langston Hughes

47. In the passage, Alice Walker is described as

(A) A research fellow at Spelman College
 (B) A professor at Sarah Lawrence College
 (C) A prize-winning writer of prose and poetry
 (D) an author of plays for children

48. Before attending college, Alice Walker went to school in

(A) Atlanta, Georgia
 (B) Eatonton, Georgia
 (C) Jackson, Mississippi
 (D) Lawrence, Massachusetts
