I. Please translate the following passage into Chinese. (40%)

In fact, many speech professionals argue that we cannot not communicate. Anything we say or do, as well as all that we are, communicates meaning to others. Sometimes what we do not say or do not do also delivers a message. For example, if we receive a gift but don't promptly thank the giver, we communicate a number of possible messages: ingratitude, that we did not like the gift, or that we are simply lacking good manners.

II. The reason you are here today is that you would like to transfer to our school to study. We would like to know why you would like to study at our school. Thus, please supply/give a title and then write a short composition (about 250 to 300 words) to tell us your reasons. Be sure to state clearly why you would like to transfer to our school.
